

Yes. Research has shown that Blast 106's audience (youths in Belfast) would benefit from the changes to the key commitments following the past few years of the station being on air. The station is serving its audience extremely well, especially with the specialist rock, urban, house and local music shows each evening, along with daytime audience researched music that caters to both students and young people in Belfast.