

Question 1: Do you have any comments on our proposals?

In short I don't believe that the BBC needs another channel in Scotland. The current BBC Scotland provides a good enough service and the proposed expenditure would be better spent on improving the current service rather than providing a new channel of which 50% will be repeats.

I'm sure I speak for many when I say that we would rather more quality over more quantity. Both radio and tv bandwidths are becoming more and more crowded with station of poor quality and so it's no surprise that they cannot raise the revenue to keep running.

So please, improve the current channels rather than add another channel that I'm sure will only attract a percentage or two of the viewing public.

You have already announced 'no more local' stations to be opened. With respect the proposed new channel must be classified as a 'local'
