Your response

Question 1: Do you agree with the proposed amendments to the BBC's Operating Licence set out in paragraphs 2.36 to 2.37 of this consultation?

Confidential? – N

For the most part, yes. I think the most important part is 2.37. If it's not 50%, or higher even, then we're looking at predominantly Beatles and Stones, Coldplay and Radiohead. I love them all, but I also want to hear other artists. I especially want to hear new protest music, which I notice is actively avoided by the BBC even when those songs climb the charts. Suppressing new music that reflects the times we're in is propaganda, the BBC are creating a world that doesn't exist.
