Your response

Question 1: Should Radio Asian Fever CIC be permitted to make its proposed changes to the Key Commitments of Fever FM, with particular regard to the statutory criteria set out in Section 1 of this consultation document? (Section 106 (1A) of the 1990 Broad	Confidential? – N As an organisation that works across the globe helping the poor, the needy, the destitute, Radio Asian Fever has played a pivotal role in our inception, from our humble beginnings Radio Asian Fever has shown us the support a new organisation requires through its community programming and community reach by allowing us to highlight the various causes and conflicts around the globe. Radio Asian Fever through its thematic programming such as its Ramadan broadcasts

has allowed us to tap in and engage with the community on a personal level by getting members of the community involved by building a bridge through its cohesion and its oneness for building and bringing all sectors of the society together.

Without the help and support of Radio Asian Fever MRI would in no doubt cease many of its medical/health programmes that have helped and supported 1000's of women, children, and the disabled of the world, many of these projects rely very heavily on Radio Asian Fever's Ramadan programming.

MRI feels that after 10 years of broadcasting and supporting various organisations and causes Radio Asian Fever should be allowed to request a change to its Key Commitments.

We feel that any changes that effect Radio Asian Fever ability to change its key commitments after almost 10 years of broadcasting and supporting the community through its thematic religious programming will indeed have a negative impact not only on many organisations that work at home and abroad but also to the community itself as this will deprive them of the opportunity to not only take part in it's programming schedule but to also contribute to the wider society.

We ask Ofcom to consider our request and allow Radio Asian Fever the ability to change its Key Commitments so as a community hub it can continue to serve its listeners and the wider public in general.
