

Yes

Chorley FM is a pinnacle of the community. They are always willing to publicise the work of charities and organisations across the spectrum. With the loss of our local newspaper, the station now gives out a wide range of news from all sources and I think it makes sense to appeal to the whole community.

Chorley is a small town but vastly expanding with new building work. The shops in town have the station on whenever I go into town.

I hear they have just acquired a lottery grant for new equipment and I am told that the station is making improvements to their output and inviting more groups to become involved.

I fully support their claim to change their commitments based upon what I have heard and read