I am 24 years of age and listen to Chorley FM. I was once involved with the station which gave me lots of self confidence.

I support their bid as Chorley is such a small place in comparison to other towns.

I listen because there are a variety of shows and unlike other stations the content is local to me.

Why should the station have such specialised commitments when it's a community radio - surely it should be for the whole community or else there is little point

I would like to see the station fulfill it's worth to the community as a whole
