

Title:

Mr

Forename:

Tom

Surname:

Caldwell

Representing:

Self

Additional comments:

Question 1: Are there areas of Ofcom's overall strategic approaches and purposes, outlined in last years' annual plan that may need to change?:

Question 2: What are the issues and areas that should form Ofcom's priorities or major work areas in 2014/15?:

Question 3: Are there any specific areas for deregulation or simplification in the coming year?:

At present no-one can have broadband supply on its own. Nor a subscription TV service, All can only be obtained with a 'line rental'.

So ingrained has this become you probably have to do a double take to realise that there is absolutely no need for this.

Only one land line is necessary for a service.

You probably have a mobile phone on a contract, so why do you need pay for a land line? So by forcing you to have the line rental, you are being forced into accepting a monopoly supply and that must, by its very nature lead to over-pricing.

If OFCOM forced the unbundling of TV, broadband, mobile and telephone services, customers would have more and better choices in a more competitive market.