Additional comments:

Question 1: Do you agree that copy management would broaden the range of HD content available on DTT and help secure its long term viability as a platform? :

not at all, drm is only used to lock up content and restrict usage, it would also block hardware manufacturers from using free code for the boxes requiring them to purchase a licence from the media industry pushing up prices of the hardware as the media industry dictate specifications and would be open to monopolistic abuse.

DRM is anti-consumer and is not wanted. the bbc is publicly funded and we should not be dictated to by the MPAA that we need to use DRM to secure viewing rights, these are scare tactics and nothing more.

Question 2: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed multiplex licence amendment represents the most appropriate means for securing an effective content management system on HD DTT? :
